

7-12
CT

SOVIET TARGETS AND POLICY

(From Ryszard Wraga, political writer and author of works on Soviet Russia)

*****

Note: It might be of interest to consider this in connection with whatever comes out of the All-Union
Communist Congress starting 4 October /Reference:
Circular Airgram, Dept. of State, Control No. 2545
(Cable In S 39208(2034Z) 25 Sept 52.)

OCT 3- 1952

The Soviet Targets and Policy (*)

The Soviet strategic targets are natural consequence of the historic past of the Russian State and of political doctrine prevailing there today. These strategic targets are: DOMINATION OF THE WORLD and IMPOSING ON IT A UNIFORM SOVIET SYSTEM.

Moscow looks with suspicion on prospects of revolution and Communism, fearing that under some circumstances they might be an obstacle to the triumphal advance of the Soviet Union. Moscow places more confidence in the program of negation, fitting in better with passivity and debility of the West, such as PACIFISM, ANARCHIC LIBERALISM, MATERIALISM, NICHILISTIC INDIVIDUALISM, GODLESSNESS, OPPOSITION TO ANY AUTHORITY, INTELLECTUAL REFINEMENT OF THE SOPHISTICAL ELITE, etc. All this would serve to break up and plunge into anarchy the Western powers. At the same time, on their side of the Iron Curtain, the Soviets spare no effort to build up and rearm their totalitarian empire.

THE SOVIET DOCTRINE IS MILITANT AND AGGRESSIVE. All issues are subordinated to strategy, pursuing one target: the overthrow of capitalism. According to doctrine the target can be reached only if the Soviet State, as material base of Bolshevism, is centralised to the maximum and totalised in all walks of life.

---

(*) According to Ryszard Wraga, political writer and author of works on Soviet Russia.

-2-

By analysing the Soviet foreign policy, the next targets of Soviet aggression can be established--eventually enabling the attainment of the main target "the overthrow of capitalism":

- target No. 1 the United States
- target No. 2 Europe and Great Britain
- target No. 3 states and nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Being interconnected these targets impose on the Bolsheviks the use of very complicated tactics and the necessity for simultaneous action in all directions, but in any case the arrangement of the consecutive targets does not change.

By analysing the domestic policy the elements on which the present Soviet empire is being built can be specified. The basic element of the Bolshevik party, that on which the party relies and rests, is the huge BUREAUCRATIC POLICE and MILITARY NETWORK: the tools of the party. This machinery is based on the Great Russian Nation (submissive to any authority and hence, most reliable). The PARTY, BUREAUCRACY AND ARMY, and THE GREAT RUSSIAN NATION, are the mainstays of the Empire and the imperialistic policy. This core is the basis of the SOVIET UNION AS A TOTALISED UNION OF THOSE SIXTEEN NATIONS which have endured the impact of the highly centralised Bolshevik policy and have been totally debarred from any possibility of restoring their own national statehood.

The next basis of the USSR policy is the whole SOVIET BLOC within which two satellites take the most important position for Soviet purposes: China in Asia and Poland in Europe.

-3-

The whole constitutes a pyramid, the base of which is the immense Soviet bloc and the apex the party dictators headed by Stalin.

The progress of centralisation and totalitarian coalescence goes from top to bottom. The nearer to the peak the less political, social and cultural distinction. The bureaucratic police and military machinery is similar to the party itself in that it is difficult to find therein any dividing line. Owing to drastic measures directed against nationalities for the purpose of creating one "Soviet" nation, all distinct national features are being obliterated in the Soviet Union proper, in spite of stubborn resistance. This policy of destroying national values is now being extended to the satellite countries where the same methods of totalization, denationalization and Russianization are being carried out as in the nations of the Soviet Union.

It would be the biggest blunder--even more than that; a crime--if the West overlooked and ignored this process of building the Soviet Empire, or tried to pretend that it is a purely domestic matter of the Soviet State. ACTUALLY THE BASIS OF FUTURE AGGRESSION IS BEING PREPARED.

The material factors on which Soviet imperialism bases its policy of aggression against the West are as follows:

- The Soviet Union serves as the main political, military, economic base and the centre of whole Soviet empire;
- The states of the Soviet bloc are used separately or in groups on political or strategic sectors, or jointly as auxiliaries of the USSR.

-4-

-National movements are generated amongst colonial and semi-dependent peoples, particularly in Asia and Africa.

-Fifth columns and Soviet agents are placed in the rear of the capitalistic countries.

It is emphasized that neither the Communist parties nor revolutionary groups are the main constituents of these fifth columns and agents. In the first instance they are those who advocate a policy of neutrality, pacifism, opportunism and, if necessary, acceptance of Bolshevism, thus slowing the political, military and economic organization of the West.

What really matters in the Soviet system is not their foreign but their domestic policy in the Union proper and in the countries of the Soviet bloc, where the sole aims are CENTRALIZATION AND STRENGTHENING OF THE SOVIET EMPIRE WITHIN ITS PRESENT FRONTIERS. The unofficial Soviet policy outside the Union is appealing to the fifth columns and Soviet agents, fomenting upheavals in Europe, Africa, Asia and America, all for the purpose of weakening their rear and center.

The Soviet foreign policy serves only as a screen for the process of building up and strengthening the Soviet Empire, to prevent the untimely outbreak of conflicts or a surprise attack from the West, should the latter decide to launch one. The secondary tasks in furtherance of official foreign policy are: propaganda of Soviet pacifism and cooperation with diversionist moves.

[Handwritten signature]
The complete isolation of the Soviet Union from the West caused the severing of contacts between the West and the USSR

-5-

The complete isolation of the Soviet Union from the West caused the severing of contacts between the West and the USSR (peoples) except those through Soviet diplomatic channels. As this is not the most essential and important factor of Bolshevik policy (in fact, it plays but an auxiliary role in the building up of the Soviet Empire), it is natural that all Western hopes and plans aiming to influence Soviet policy and settle the most important issues by diplomatic means are USELESS AND CANNOT BRING ANY RESULT. THE ONLY REALISTIC POLICY WHICH WOULD HIT THE TARGET AND MIGHT WARD OFF THE BOLSHEVIK AGGRESSION WOULD BE A POLICY WHICH WOULD THREATEN THE FURTHER CONSOLIDATION PROCESS OF THE SOVIET EMPIRE AND THE TIGHTENING UP OF THE TOTALITARIAN SYSTEM; A POLICY AIMED AT THE DESTRUCTION OF THE ONLY REAL BOLSHEVIK ACHIEVEMENT, THAT IS: THE SOVIET STATE.

*nevertheless, now that Kerman has been summarily expelled,
I believe we should establish our own IRON CURTAIN on the periphery of Sov R & Satellites.*

